

And What About You?

Getting Started with Interactive Pairs and Small Groups

Author: Ron Nash

Ron Nash is a graduate of Clarion State College, now Clarion University, where he obtained his bachelor's degree in education and his master's degree in history. As a social studies teacher, Nash taught grades 7 through 12 in Pennsylvania and Virginia. He served as Middle School Social Studies Coordinator for the Virginia Beach City Public Schools from 1994 to 1998, and later moved to Organizational Development for the same district. Retiring in 2007, Nash formed Ron Nash and Associates, Inc., a company dedicated to continuous improvement in schools and classrooms. Nash has presented at ASCD, Learning Forward, and dozens of state and regional conferences over the past 23 years. Nash is the author of several books, including two bestsellers, The Active Classroom and From Seatwork to Feetwork, both in second editions. Other titles include The Power of We, And What About You?, and his newest title In Praise of Foibles.

Review

"These strategies will certainly get your students talking and in turn will promote critical and creative thinking in classrooms at any level."

Jared Cotton, Virginia's 2018 Superintendent of the Year

"Honestly, if you like standing and talking about the subject that you teach, your students are going to love it when they get the chance to do it!"

*Alan Fox, Director of Secondary Instruction
Warren County Public Schools*

And What About You?

Getting Started With Interactive Pairs and Small Groups

by Ron Nash

A supplemental guide to The Power of We, providing the concrete steps and process considerations that make implementing interactive techniques in your classroom easy and practical. Through personal experience and expert research, Nash provides the essential guide for those teachers who don't know where to begin or feel like group work could never work in their classroom.
